Robbers' Methods Old; Loss Blamed on Banks

Edgewater Park, Miss., April 17 (A.P.).—Bank robbers are showing a surprising lack of originality, using the methods of "grandfather's day," the executive council of the American Bankers Association, in session here, was told today.

The declaration came in a report of the association's protective committee, which further said banks robbed or defrauded now have themselves mostly to blame. During the six months ended

February 28, members of the association reported 283 forgeries, 80 holdups, 19 burglaries, 6 sneak thefts and 5 mortgage swindles. The report declared that eight out of ten of the forgerles resulted from payments of checks bearing forged signatures of bank customers, and could have been detected in most cases by comparisons with genuine

RESERVATION IS CANCELED

New York, April 17 (A.P.) .- The Daily News tomorrow will say that Thomas Gorman, 26-year-old Port Washington real estate dealer, was considerably perturbed today over his inability to find his heiress-bride, Natalie Guggenheim 18, and feared that she was being sent to Europe. According to the secretary of Edmon

A. Guggenheim, copper magnate and father of the bride, Mrs. Gorman passed today with her parents in New York, but the bridegroom was unable to find her and his attempts to telephone her at the Guggenheim home failed. When he found that Mrs. Guggenheim had engaged a suite on the Aquitania, sali-ing tomorrow morning, his concern was increased. Nor was it lessened when he learned that the reservation had been canceled late this afternoon. The statement tentatively promised for today from Mr. Guggenheim, who opposed the marriage, was not given out, nor did he hold a conference with his son-in-law, as it had been inferred by associates he would.

Expectation of blessings from the bride's parents on his secret marriage to the former Natalie Guggenheim was voiced earlier today by Gorman. "I don't expect any opposition from Mr. Guggenheim on religious or any other grounds," he said. Gorman is a Catholic. The Guggenheims are Jews.

Guggenheim, wealthy father of the oride, arrived in New York last night, cutting short a vacation at White Sul-phur Springs, W. Va., when news reached him of the wedding. He conferred with his attorney. Gorman de

He said he frequently was a guest at the Guggenheim home and on their yacht and had many times accompa-nied Mr. Guggenheim to prizefights. He denied he ever had been ordered from the Guggenheim home.

NEW GERMAN CRAFT MYSTIFYING NAVIES

Cruiser Will Revolutionize Naval Construction, Is Engineers' Belief.

OUTSHOOTS ANY OF CLASS

Because of its apparent superiority over any cruiser the new ship Ersatz Preussen being built for the German navy is expected to have "far-reaching on the international naval " according to a description

Limited to a 10,000-ton displacement by the Versailles treaty, German inby the Versailles treaty, German ingenuity has developed a ship that outwits the treaty and causes consternation among the nations of the world.

The Ersats Preussen is described as a nondescript ship that embodies the best features of other types of crafts, and yet is in a category all its own. Its possibilities are so startling that were they not "vouched for by the German admiralty, they would be almost incredible."

possibilities are so starting that value they not "vouched for by the German admiralty, they would be almost incredible."

The guns to be carried on the ship are capable of hurling a projectile more than 17 miles, and the new motors, about which there is a "good deal of mystery," are capable of propelling the ship at 20 knots an hour for 10,000 miles without being refueled.

Further the Ersatz Preussen is completely protected by armor plating below water line, double armour decks over vital spaces and extensive subdivision as a defense against underwater explosions.

In discussing the new ship, the bulletin of engineering information issued by the Navy Department declared:

"All things considered, the German constructors have produced a noteworthy ship, the completion of which bids fair to mark an epoch in naval design. She will be unique in many ways, not least in respect of cost, since the estimate for the ship, complete with armament, is $20,000,000, or $2,000 per ton. Three further units of the class are projected. The appearance of these vessels may have far-reaching reactions on the international naval situation, for they will introduce a factor that was not contemplated when the Washington is a greatly superior to the treaty class of 10,000-ton cruiser, they are faster than any existing batfleship, and it is difficult to see how any vessel other than a battle cruiser could deal with them. Possibly, therefore, the Ersatz Preussen may eventually necessitate some revision of the treaty rules governing ship design.

"The main armament consists of six 11-inch guns in triple turrets, with mountings permitting a high angle of the clevation; eight 5.9-inch guns behind shields four 3.4-inch antisircraft guns mountings permitting a high angle of elevation; eight 5.9-inch guns behind shields, four 3.4-inch antiaircraft guns in tandem, and six 19.7-inch torpedo tubes on triple carriages, one at each side of the quarter deck.

EASIER DEBT TERMS ARE SOUGHT OF U.S.

Reparations Experts Declare "Sacrifice" Is Temporary; Senators Wary.

OPEN DEBATE DEMANDED

By ALBERT W. FOX.

America will be called upon to sacrifice part of the actual value of the 2¼ per cent of German reparations payable under the Dawes plan, according to the readjustment of payable under the payable under the payable upon the readjustment of payable upon the readjustment of payable upon the payable upon to payable upon to sacrificate upon the payable upon to sacrificate upon the payable upon to sacrificate upon to sacrif payable inder the Dawes plan, according to the readjustment of reparations payments being worked out by the financial experts at Paris. But the experts are hoping that the United States Government will not object to what is termed a mere temporary sacrifice, or extension of time for the payments involved and it is hinted that objection by the United States might easily tend to disrupt the whole program for early agreement on the reparations problem.

The desire of the allied governments and the financial experts to ascertain in advance the American position is now understood to be the reason for the mystery here over latest communications from Paris on the reparations question.

TO BRIDGE DEBT GAP

Inications from Paris on the Topacations question.

Whether the White House conference on Saturday had any immediate bearing on these communications is not divulged and Secretary of State Stimson has made it clear that he is not yet ready to discuss the matter or answer questions pertaining to it. Debt Not Abandoned.

It develops that the European experts, together with Owen D. Young, J. P. Morgan and Thomas W. Lamont, who unofficially represent America, are not suggesting actual abandonment of debts due from Germany to American taxpayers. The payments for Army costs are not to be involved in the 2% per cent, because these payments were costs are not to be involved in the 2½ per cent. because these payments were prior payments in any event and were deducted from the annual German payments before the American percentage applied to the residue.

Under the agreement of January 14, 1925, the distribution made by the allies calls for an annual payment of 55,000,000 gold marks to the United States for the cost of the American army of occupation in Germany. The fact that Great Britain and France have paid themselves at an accelerated rate, while paying America very slowly, is not a factor in the Dawes plan 2½ per cent payments to America to coverclaims under the Mixed Claims Commission and other debts.

These latter payments to America are limited to the sum of 45,000,000 gold marks and the payments this year will reach this lump sum, because the actual 2½ per cent would mean a greater amount. The payment of America under the preceding annuity reached about 30,000,000 gold marks.

Allies Would Get Less.

Allies Would Get Less. A scaling down process in the amount payable annually by Germany to the reparations commission means a scaling down in the actual amount payable to the United States on the 2½ per cent basis. The ailies themselves will reconsiderably less, with the result that the 2¼ per cent will represent a lesser amount than under recent pay-ments. America would thus get the 2¼ per cent; but the value in gold marks or dollars would be merely a portion of what is now being received.

The net result would be that the money paid to American taxpayers would be strung over a greater period n account of the smaller annual payment, or decreasing the annual amounts, would not be sum, it is contended.

a considerable divulge to Congress the information it has received. But opinion is becoming general that Congress and the people of the United States should be given Method of Offer Factor.

Apparently much will depend on the ethods adopted by the experts and European governments in bringing taxpayers at the earliest possible the European governments in bringing about the change in the American recelpts under the 2% per cent formula. If the change is brought about openly and in such manner that the Congress of the United States can ascertain what and in such manner that the Congress of the United States can ascertain what is going on and express itself before final commitments are made, there may be no difficulty, it is suggested. Approval by the Congress of any new plan may be desirable or necessary, but it is not believed that the executive branch Criticizing Senator Borah's resolution now before the Senate to recognize the Soviet government, the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown University, yesterday afternoon attacked communism in a speech delivered before the delegates.

Prof. Walsh suggested that the resolution be changed to read:

"Within its territory the Soviet government is sultivating a war psychosis and a spirit of militarism unequaled in any land. Yet Mr. Litvinov, of the Soviet, went before the world at Geneva two days ago and cynically proposed universal disarmament.

"The Soviet, with mock pacifism, invites the bourgeois world to stretch forth its meek and unprotected neck for the sacrificial knife of Communism. Mr. Litvinov must have has his tongue in his cheek during his speech," he concluded.

The candidates and their management

The reports and proceedings of the day held the attention of the delegates. The candidates and their managers were busy making last-minute tabulations of their checks and checking on their votes and counter claims and rumors were afloat which in some instances benefited one candidate and then the other.

Political wiseacres of the congress, weterans who have watched the trend of elections for a number of years, appeared to feel that Mrs. Hobart and her ticket had the best chance to win. They based this prediction on the fact that Mrs. Hobart enters the contest with many great States of the North. New England and the Middle West lined up behind her.

On the other hand, Mrs. Talmadge's managers and friends were active in similar claims for her and would not admit that the popular Southern woman and her associates faced defeat.

The rehearing petition, signed by Martin W. Littleton and George P. Hoover, asserted that Sinclair was denied the protection of the fourth and fifth amendments to the Constitution in this case through the unconstitutionality of the Senate contempt statute. The unconstitutionality, it is claimed. lies in the fact that Sinclair was afforded no opportunity to test in a court of law the issues involved in his testimony before the Senate Teapor Dome committee before he was called before it in March, 1924

In regular procedure the petition for a rehearing will be laid immediately before the court. It probably will be considered in an executive conference this week and a decision on it is likely to be announced Monday or the Monday following.

be announced Monday or the Monday following.

Liwleton, in the petition, certified that the motion was presented "in good faith," not for delay.

The principal argument of the petition was summarized as follows:

"Under section 102 (the Senate contempt statute) as now construed, the committees of Congress are the only agency of the Government before which a citizen can be compelled to appear and compelled to sacrifice his fundamental rights or invite a criminal prosecution without being afforded the right to be heard in a court of competent jurisdiction for the purpose of safeguarding these fundamental rights."

The individual rights which were safeguarding these fundamental rights."

The individual rights which were said to be violated in the proceeding against Sinclair were: To be exempt from unauthorized or unreasonable inquirles into personal, private affairs; the right to refuse to answer questions beyond the committee's power; the right to refuse questions not pertinent to the legislative inquiry, and the right to refuse to answer questions put for the sole purpose of alding prosecution of pending litigation.

The petition also argued that at the time of his refusal to testify before the Teapot Dome committee in 1924 the Supreme Court had not construed the laws to require witnesses to testify. In the only two important decisions on this point prior to his appearance, the this point prior to his appearance, the petition said, the Supreme Court had "refused to construe and left in doubt" the exact status of witnesses before congressional committees.

"Certainly under such state of the law a witness had a right to doubt the power of the committee to compel evidence," said the petition. "Moreover, when the question was squarely prewhen the question was squarely prewhen the court (after Sinclair's rewhen the question was squarely pre-sented to this court (after Sinclair's re-fusal to testify, in the case of McGrain rusal to testify, in the case of McGrain vs. Daugherty, it required two years and 43 days for this court to decide that Congress had the constitutional authority to compel evidence in aid of a legislative function."

"Now, when the court says that Sinclair was 'bound to construe the statute correctly' it imposes upon him not only the duty of construing the statute correctly, but it required him to construe what this court had refused to look into the effect, enforcement, administration, interpretation and into a legislative function."

"Many of the people," Reid said, "believe that the board's action was more in the interests of a few capitalists than for the general good of the common people."

Sugar's five uses in the diet . ..

Authority explains this delicious food

WE RECENTLY asked the food scientist at one of the great universities to describe the rightful place of sugar in the diet.

"Sugar has five distinctive uses," he said.
"1. A conserver of foods. 2. A flavoring substance. 3. A satilation factor. 4. A staple fuel.
5. An emergency fuel."

The scientist showed that sugar is used as a conserver of many foods are scientist femilia.

a conserver of many foods, especially fruits.

Discussing sugar as a flavorer, the scientist said: "One of the most praiseworthy developments of the use of fresh fruits... contingent on the free availability." Discussing sugar as a satiation factor, he said: "Topping off the meal with a sweet dessert gives a sense of satiation . . . an meal with a sweet dessert gives a sense of satiation . . . an important item in the diet."

The scientist pointed out that "Sugar as a staple fuel ranks with starch . . . sugar is more rapidly digested than starch; otherwise they are entirely comparable fuels."

He then defined the use of sugar as an emergency fuel. "The process of resorption is so rapid," he said, "that sugar appears in the muscles (the fire-box of the body) within a few minutes after ingestion."

So it is that sugar is one of the most useful and least expensive of foods. As a flavorer alone, it deserves a place in every diet for making other healthful foods delicious.

SIGNS OF CONFLICT.

The conflict of opinion among Republicans in Congress in discussing President Hoover's farm relief proposals is unexpectedly outspoken. It portends not only disagreement within the party, but a disagreement between the two houses of Congress. The House Republicans are fairly in accord with Mr. Hoover, and are bringing out a farm relief bill which is understood to be acceptable to him. But the Senate Republicans have another bill in mind, differing radically from the House bill, and containing features which the House committee has 1930, and even in showing a small credit already rejected.

The Senate committee is now expected to report a bill which will provide a The surplus would thus be £4,096,000. It is a bounty on farm exports in the shape of notable example of "cutting things fine;" but debentures representing about one-half the process seems to be warranted, especially of the duty on wheat and about 2 cents a pound on cotton. These debentures would be receivable in payment of customs duties. Presumably the holders of debentures would sell them to importers at an attractive discount. These debentures are substantially a subsidy to exporters of farm products, and it is estimated that the Treasury would lose about $140,000,000 annually through this subsidy. The Senate committee's plan, therefore, is to transfer the burden of loss in farm exports from the farmers, who were to pay in the form of an equalization fee, to the Treasury, which will reflect the loss in customs receipts.

that "no activities should be set in motion that will result in increasing the surplus production, as such will defeat any plans for relief." Although Mr. Hoover touches very lightly the subject of discouraging or preventing overproduction, he does give a hint that the proposed Federal Farm Board should have authority to "furnish guidance as to need in production." But if the farmer is to be subsidized for production that is exported, will he not increase production and thus make the problem of the surplus greater than before? What is to hold down the subsidy to $140,000,000 a year? A bounty of 21 cents a bushel for wheat may result in an enormous and unmanageable increase of that cereal, to such an extent that the world market will not absorb the surplus. If the Senate committee can devise a plan that will encourage the farmer by giving him a subsidy, and at the same time discourage him from planting more, it will be a miracle worker. The core of the whole problem of farm relief may be found in overproduction. American farming is more and more a mechanical process in which quick diversification of crops is practically impossible. The farms and the farmers are geared to produce that they have been producing, and nothing else.

Mr. Hoover has not given any indication of his attitude toward the debenture plan, but it does not seem probable that he would favor it without some countercheck against overproduction, since he plainly states that an increase of surplus production would defeat any plan of

Thus, apparently, the Republicans of the Senate are about to come into conflict with the House and the President on the fundamental problem that all are trying to solve. It is not a reassuring outlook for early or harmonious action.

DECENTRALIZING INDUSTRY.

New York State is holding an economic congress to determine why industrial growth of that State is slowing up. A number of akers were heard on the opening day and my different theories were expounded. The most general explanation was that industry is eaving New York because of the heavy tax burden. Virgil Jordan, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, expressed what appears to be the most logical dews Calling of the meeting, he said, does not mean that the New York region is faced with any serious or immediate danger of losing its economic supremacy, but there are indications that it is reaching its maturity as a manufacturing area. He presented evidence that New York is not attracting the newer and larger basic industries, and asked the question. Can New York maintain its predominance as the workshop of the Nation?

The answer must be looked for in many States which are recently acquiring new manufacturing establishments. New York is still the foremost industrial State by a considerable margin, producing 15 per cent of the total manufactures of the country. More than 60 per cent of the manufactured products of the country are still made in the group of seven States including New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, New Jersey and Massachusetts. But four of those seven States are losing in the annual value of their manufactured products, according to figures of the Department of Commerce. On the other hand, many States not in the leading group are rapidly building up their industries. This is particularly true in the South.

The redistribution of population that has come about during the last twenty years and the rapid growth of cities in many States clearly indicate that industry is being geographically decentralized. Large concerns which once confined their activities to one large Eastern city and shipped their finished products to the different sections are esablishing branch factories in the West and the South. There is a growing tendency to manufacture goods that are produced in large quantities in the same region in which they are consumed. Likewise there is a movement to manufacture goods in the same area where the raw materials are to be found. Since no one section has a monopoly on power resources, it is quite likely that many States which have been heretofore largely agricultural will make rapid progress in industry. New York and the surrounding territory will, no doubt, continue as the leading industrial area, but it is inevitable that its relative importance will diminish as it becomes only one among a Nation of industrial States.

THE BRITISH BUDGET.

Winston Churchill, chancellor of the British exchequer, has succeeded in balancing his budget for the fiscal year ending March 31, balance. He estimates a revenue of £826,-680,000 and an expenditure of £822,584,000. as, so far as can now be judged, no attempt was made to play the tempting and alluring game of financial legerdemain. In many quarters something sensational was expected to appear in the chancellor of the exchequer's statement: instead, he provided a humdrum but level-headed budget.

Churchill would be more than human if, speaking practically on the eve of a general election, he did not make a bid for the support of large masses of the voters. This he undoubtedly did by announcing the repeal of two forms of taxation-the tax on betting and the tax on tea. In a country in which horse vacing is carried on with great gusto from year's end to year's end, and in which the backing of one's fancy is practiced on a grand scale by most sections of the population, particularly by the poorer classes, the tax on betting was highly unpopular. It was naturally evaded whenever evasion was possible, and the returns from it were in consequence not at all up to the anticipated standard. It was disliked, too, on ethical grounds by those unco quid people who frown on every form of gambling, because, in their estimation, it gave, or seemed to give, legal sanction to what, at least in the case of all stay-at-home backers and bookmakers, had previously been an illegal act. Accordingly, Churchill has given gratification to two very different elements of the community and, in doing so, has merely sacrificed a source of revenue that was in reality negligible. He has, in fact, killed three birds with one stone.

In taking off the 4 pence a pound tax on tea, and thereby contributing materially to the ideal, so long sought, of "a free breakfast table," the British finance minister has sacrificed something tangible to the tune of over £6,000,000 a year; but what he loses in revenue he gains a hundredfold in popularity for himself and his party. Nearly all Britishers are inveterate tea drinkers, most of them partaking of that beverage at least twice a day and many still oftener, and the repeal of the tax is therefore a very insidious and striking argumentum ad hominem. It will appeal with particular force to the 5,000,000 or so women voters who have been recently endowed with the parliamentary franchise.

Taken all in all, the budget proposals submitted by Churchill seem to have a sound financial basis. That they also constitute extremely clever electioneering tactics goes

AMERICA'S BIG TRADE ABROAD.

The foreign trade of the United States is in a healthy condition and is growing larger every year in spite of tariffs and stiff competition from other nations. This country now takes high rank among the greatest export nations of the world. Its advanced methods of mass production enable American workmen to produce far more than is consumed in this country, in spite of the highest standard of living in the world. An analysis of "Our World Trade" just issued by the commerce department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States shows that American exports have been gradually increasing for the past eight years, except during the depression of 1921. Last year exports reached a total value of $5,129,000,-000, which is 5.4 per cent greater than in 1927. This gain was not confined to a few products. Ten of the eleven groups of export commodities made gains, ranging from 1 to 21 per cent, over the high values of 1927. Values were higher for nearly two-thirds of the 100 principal American exports, and sales were greater to 70 per cent of our best foreign products, tobacco, copper, iron and steel products, and agricultural machinery. Improvement was shown by each of these commodities. Chief among those products showing a decline were coal, coke and a number of foodstuffs. Since Congress is undertaking to improve market facilities to handle surplus agricultural crops, and since exports of manufactured goods continue to expand, it is possible that 1929 will give the United States its greatest export year in history.

Special significance attaches to the statement of the Chamber of Commerce that "one of the outstanding developments of our foreign trade in recent years is the increasingly large proportion of American-manufactured merchandise in our exports." Finished manufactures account for nearly 45 per cent of the 1928 exports, a record equaled only in 1916. The total of finished manufactured goods, semimanufactures and manufactured foodstuffs amounted to 68.5 per cent of the value of products shipped abroad.

The United States was once an agricultural nation whose exports consisted chiefly of raw products and foodstuffs. For a nation with a large population of workers, the benefits of substituting finished manufactures for raw materials can not be overemphasized. The figures contain a suggestion for dealing with food products which are now shipped raw to foreign markets. Conversion of some of these into prepared foods might increase the market abroad and give work to men being released from farms and factories because of improved machinery. A larger percentage of finished products is likely to figure in future exports.

If President Hoover had only known in advance that the opening game would be postponed because of rain, he might have planned to deliver his message in person.

Scientists have developed an artificial larynx, a mechanical lung and other spare parts for the body, but they have not yet produced that which is urgently needed-a supplementary

WHY CONGRESS IS HELPLESS

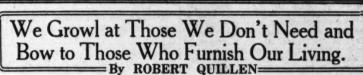

From the Boston Transcript.

With unconscious humor, the statesmen assembling today in Washington to constitute the first session of the Seventy-first Congress are guessing how long they will remain there. If they would make a sport of the performance, they might lay bets on the date of adjournment, as passengers on shipboard make up a pool on the daily run of the vessel, and at least get a little fun out of their speculations. It would be a fair gamble, for the one thing Congress does not know of itself is its own capacity to transact business and go home. President Hoover has suggested, and the responsible party leaders have assented, that the Congress should do no more than enact a farm relief bill and jig the tariff up a little, primarily in the interest of the distressed farmer. Some of the more self-respecting solons hope also that they can lay the ghost of a nine-year scandal by passing a reapportionment bill, but probably this is too much

Why is it that Congress is so vague as to gangsters could win the war for you its own program, and the leaders must timidly suggest that it tackle only two major measures, in the hope that it will get at least one of them out of the way before the snow flies? Why can not a presumably intelligent body of American citizens, numbering some 531, map out a legislative schedule of measures the American people want enacted and put it through? Is it lack of ability? Certainly not. Congress is a very able body, despite its faults. It can move swiftly and efficiently whenever it pleases to do so. Is it because of disagreements that can not be composed, if there is the will to compose them? No. Is it because of lack of a party majority? Decidedly not, for the Republican party is supreme in both branches. Is it handicapped by the President? It is not, and Mr. Hoover has emphasized that it will be his policy to let Congress alone.

Why, then, this timidity, this evasiveness, this inability to set a time for adjournment, much more to present a satisfactory legislative program? Charles Gates Dawes put his finger on the real trouble when he picked up the gavel as presiding officer of the Senate in the Sixty-ninth Congress, and in the four years which have elapsed the country has been reminded a dozen times how fundamentally and eternally right he was. The reason is found in the archaic rules of the United States Senate, which surrender all the power of that body to a minority and compel the majority to sit by helpless. Congress maintains a sort of technical leadership, as typified by gentlemen like Mr. Tilson and Senator Watson, but neither they nor any other authority can propose a program and put it through. They are equally helpless to prevent the proposal of measures which clog the legislative machinery yet are known by their authors to be incapable of final action. The country has been studying the Senate with a microscope the last four years, and it understands now that the Senate rules not only confer a power upon individuals which never was contemplated by the Fathers but that they are employed systematically to defeat the leadership of the President, who is the chosen representative of the people, and are used to nullify any advantage one party or another might hope to gain through an overwhelming victory in the national election. Originally formulated to stimulate discussion and to safeguard the country against hasty action, they are so abused that they have become an instrument of positive tyranny, costing the country millions of dollars every year in needless and overlong sessions, preventing final action upon measures regarding which public opinion is perfectly clear and making a mockery of their original beneficent purpose. It is not known how long the present session will last or what business it will transact because the Senate rules lodge the power of such decision in the hands of a partisan minority whose chief object is to wreck any program of the elected majority that public opinion would

WHEN I desire information, I go to those best qualified to give it. The best qualified in this instance were mothers, and I said to them: "Is it a wise thing to provide a life income for a girl, and thus enable her to marry without being dependent on her husband?"

They were "middle-class" mothers, acquainted with poverty and unselfishness and happy homes, and they answered without hesitation:

"It isn't natural." said one. "for a wife to be independent. She loves for establishing a foreign embassy of and respects her husband because she can depend on him-because he cares for her. Justice to All Athletes. To the Editor of The Post-Sir: Po owing a meeting between representalives of the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Amo ciation held last Monday night in New York, it appeared that the long-standing dispute between these two important sports governing bodies had been ironed out. The A. A. U. conceded that the colleges of the country are capable of and should have the right to certify to the amateur status of their athletes without their individual registration with the A. A. U., and it cor body to participate in events not do not compete against athletes under lieved, following the meeting, that the preparing to hold their lines tight against the threatened Senate fight. Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, said that the Senate could not tack the debenture plan onto the farm bill, because it is a revnue-raising measure, and such measures must originate in the House. He said this after a call on the President.

His argument is based presumably on the fact that under the debenture plan, a farmer would receive one-half of the tariff rate on produce which he exported. For example, if he shipped a bushel of wheat he would get, in addition to the world market price, a debenture of 21 cents, this being half of the tariff on wheat imports. He would get this simply as a bonus.

Clash on Revenue Phase.

Clash on Revenue Phase. The Senate debenture proponents argue, however, that by no conceivable means can the debenture plan be looked upon as a tariff-raising measure. On the other hand, it is a tariff paying-

However, Mr. Snell's statement is taken as one of the parliamentary arguments at the House's command. It is too early to gauge the extent to which the fight may develop in the Senate; but, with the Democrats and the progressive Republicans to large the progressive Republicans joining the debenture proposal would prevail Combine Causes Worry.

It is this combination that is giving the administration trouble now in the Senate committee. The Republicans have two vacancies in the first place and among those sitting are such progressives as Senator Norris and Senator Norbeck.

Norbeck.
Should the President take a decisive stand there is but little doubt that the debenture movement would quickly dissipate. This he seems reluctant to do, having made it known that his is not to be a "dictatorial" attitude toward Congress.
The debenture plan would, of course, be optional with the Farm Board that is created under the main provisions of be optional with the Farm Board that is created under the main provisions of the bill. It could be applied to one or all commodities by a majority vote of the board.

The fact that the President will have control of the board has caused the belief in some quarters that the President is not seriously worried whether it is incorporated in the bill or not. The House, however, intends to make a stand against it.

permitted to intoxicated persons. It will be served enly in staterooms and with meals.

There will undoubtedly be a lot of debate both in the Senate and in the House on the subject. In so far as the House is concerned, it will amount to nothing more than that.

The spirit of insurgency that obtains in the Senate might make it possible for definite action there looking to the prevention of the liquor sales, but with the perfect whiphand which the leaders have over the House, the Senate action would be fruitless.

There are some indications that the President has, interested himself in the argument of American operators that without the sale of liquor they can not compete with vessels flying the foreign flag.

It has become known that when the It has become known that when the controversy arising out of the Leviathan's sale of liquor was at its height, the President had Mathew Brush, director of the International Mercantile Marine Co., as one of his night guests. No announcement was made of Mr. Brush's visit at the time.

The conclusion now is that it had to do with the sale of liquor on American-owned ships. IN M'NARY FARM BILL

If Mr. Brush's visit did have to do with steamer liquor, it would be in line with Mr. Hoover's long established custom of calling key men into conference when any kind of a problem arises.

"Run, run for your life, Alexis! Russian spies are at our heels!" he breathed.

"I feel it in the air."

The madman, who kept hold of him, ran him to the tomb, where he halted, produced a key, opened the door which was fastened by a spring lock and pushing Alexis in front of him jumped in and slammed the door after them.

Alexis did not realize where he was.

Alexis did not realize where he was. He had a horrible fear all at once that Grohogan had brought him here to kill him. "Where are we?" he gasped. "At the gate of death," replied Grohogan, grimly. "You get the box with its contents intact." He struck a match. "This is a tomb!" gasped Alexis, glancing around. Your tomb and mine! Ha! Ha!

He drew a revolver and flourished it.

Alexis looked around. In a niche at the back of the tomb he saw the tin box which he remembered so well.

Alexis crawled out and dropped to the floor. He seized the box and striking a match made his way to door. It was secured by a peculiar spring lock and he could make nothing of it. There was not even a keyhole visible on this side.

Now the fear seized the boy that he was going to find himself locked in there until he starved to death. There was a queer ringing in his ears. Before he could get another match out he fell in a dead faint.

Helen Hayes a former Washington girl, starring in her latest New York hit, "Coquette," comes to Poli's for an engagement of one week beginning next Monday night, April 22. She is under the management of Jed Harris, who has to his credit such sensational hits as "Broadway," "The Royal Family" and "The Front Page."
Previous to "Coquette," Miss Hayes appeared in the revival of Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows." Other plays in which Helen Hayes has shone with radiant luster are "Bab," "Penrod," "Clarence," "Dear Brutus," "To the Ladies," "Caesar and Cleopatra" and "Young Blood."
"Coquette" is the work of George Abbott and Ann Preston Bridgers. The story of the play centers about Norma Bessant, enacted by Miss Hayes, a young Southern belle of charming vivacity, possessed with a flair for light love making. Half the eligibles in the small Virginia town in which she lives with her widowed father, Dr. Besant, are enmeshed in her flirtations. Skilled in the devices of evasion and equivocation, she keeps all her suitors on the alert, much to the concern of her father. He is somewhat puzzled by the conduct of modern youth.

You are serious-minded, concentrate upon worth-while things, but not to the exclusion of social amenities. You prefer and enjoy the companionship of those near your own age; you stick to your old friends and are rather loath to pick up with new ones. Samuel Johnson said, "If a man does not make new acquaintances as he advances through life, he will soon find himself left alone. A man should keep his friend-ship in constant repair."

Religion will play an active part in your life, and you will try to sincerely live up to its tenets. You are rather intolerant toward the religious views of others, and are ardent missionary for others, and are ardent missionary for your own faith. Your life promises to be as you wish it, comfortable, con-tented and secure.

> Government census officials will seek through the medium of radio to dispel the suspicion that formerly attached to the decennial visits of the census enumerator when the 1930 census is taken, possibly in the latter part of this year. The Census Bureau has not yet decided just how it shall employ the radio to faciliate its gigantic task of "counting the heads" of every man, woman and child in the United > States, but its officials are giving considerable thought to the matter.

> Threefold possibilities have presented themselves to the director of the bureau, William M. Steuart, although bureau, William M. Steuart, although all plans at this time are being held in abeyance pending the passage of a census bill by Congress. Caught up in a legislative jam during the last session, the bill is expected to be pushed through during the present extra session with the full support of the administration.

In the first place, Mr. Steuart proposes to leave it to the discretion of the 560 supervisors who will have charge of as many districts into which the United States has been divided for the census. States has been divided for the census, as to how they shall best acquaint their constituents with the plans and purposes of the census. It willebe suggested, however, that they use local broadcasting stations as frequently as possible and that portions of the conference between the officials from Washington and the district supervisors shall be broadcast.

Out of Washington, it is probable that the higher census officials will make speeches during the census-tak-ing period to attract Nation-wide attention through the national chains. In fact, Mr. Steuart only last week spoke on the next population census over one of the networks of the Na-over one of the networks of the National Broadcasting Co.

In the second place, it is proposed to have the district supervisors announce the census returns for each political subdivision of the country as fast as they are compiled. It is planned to give the radio and the press an "even break" on the statistics, which will naturally be availed with keep interest. naturally be awaited with keen interest in nearly every community. The na-tional networks have already signified their willingness to broadcast the returns for the major cities, but it is more than likely that the regional and local stations will get the first chance at the figures for the respective terri-

The third radio aspect of the census of 1930 is in that portion of the count devoted to agriculture. One of the questions to be asked every farmhouse visited is: "Have you a radio?" This question will not be put to the urban

Mr. Steuart expresses the hope that the taking of the census can begin mext November 1, as that is the time when people are at their normal places of abode. Something like 100,000 enumerators are employed to take the census. Each works a district of about 1,800 people, though the rural enumerators work over more territory with fewer people therein. This army of enumerators is required to take an oath of office, in which they agree to make a correct count and preserve the secrecy of the information secured. Heavy penalties are imposed for violations.

"So none of you." Mr. Steuart said in his recent radio speech, "need have the slightest hesitation in answering the enumerator's questions frankly, without any bashfulness or mental reservation." This is the kind of message that will be repeated many times via South Declarer, contract Spades, East had bid Clubs, so West started by lead-ing the Trey of Clubs. East won 'wo Club tricks and then, appreciating that Dummy could trump the third Club, tried the expedient of leading up to Dummy's weakness in Diamonds. South won with the Ace, put Dummy in with Heart, and led a winning Heart from Dummy on which Closed Hand dis-carded a losing Diamond. Dummy then King, and consequently the Declarer made the rest of the tricks except one Diamond—game.

ports a study of 125 cases in Iowa, discovered and studied in a period of a few months. Probably there were as many more cases in that State in the same period that were called typhoid, malaria, or tuberculosis, or went without a name. Probably in proportion to population every other section had as much undulant fever as Iowa.

In this Iowa study the farmers and people who live in the rural districts supplied most of the cases. The evidence is that it is spread by drinking milk, either cow's or goat's, and by eating or handling hog meat. The people who live in the larger cities do not have much of it, because almost all of them drink pasteurized milk, and heat-East knows that V/est has no more Clubs because he played the Trey on the first round and the Deuce on the second. If East lead a Club to trick 3, and West trumps it, a trump honor will be forced from North if West has a trump higher than the Trey—which would seem to be a reasonable expectation. With one of North's trump hon-ors out of the way, East can surely win a trump trick and game will be saved if West can produce the fourth trick for his side-which he can, in them drink pasteurized milk, and heating kills the undulant fever bacilius. However, butchers and workers in meat packing establishments are liable to contract it from handling hog meat. The symptoms are not very different from those of typhoid. Any case of prolonged fever which does not give a positive test for typhoid should have a blood test for undulant fever. The method of making the test is similar to that of testing for typhoid. Most laboratories are prepared to diagnose undulant fever on request. Occasionally the usual blood test is followed up by a bacteriologic examination of the blood. The symptoms which should cause one to suspect undulant fever are weakness, profuse sweating, headache, backache, leg pains, constipation Consequently East should lead the Four of Clubs to trick 3 (West might not ruff a winning Club). South would play the Nine and West, appreciating East's scheme, would trump the trick with the Four of Spades. Played in this way East and West would win two Clubs, one Spade and one Diamond are weakness, profuse sweating, headache, backache, leg pains, constipation and fever. The fever tends to hang on or to come and go for months. The rule is that the sickness is mild. The affected person is able to keep at work or to keep on his feet. He does not take to bed and become weak and maciated, as is the case of typhoid fever. The only way to be certain of the trouble is by having the blood test made.

He has very good habits. Takes a drink now and then, but I have never heard of his being under the influence of liquor. I have known him one year. He has asked me to marry him and I have consented, when we are in the financial position to do so. My parents like him. I know all his family.

But he seems to do everything in his power to make me jealous, and I am one of these unfortunate persons who, when I am jealous, show it, and plainly. Now, whether or not he does this just for the pleasure of hearing me tell him about it I don't know. He says that it is so. He looks at every girl who is the least bit attractive and who happens to pass us on the street or sit anywhere in our vicinity, in a street car, &c. He had another girl (very pretty) and he liked her very much until he met me. Since then he does not see her, though she lives very near him, and he tells me he never even thought of her in the same way as he does me.

Now, what I want to know is this. Can he possibly love me when he does the things that he knows hurt me terribly? I have a very passionate and affectionate nature, but can also forgive very easily. I won't say how quickly I forget.

Should I marry him or let him go? He says he loves me more than anything else. He has a job, good and Find the Motive.

STEALING on the part of children is a difficult and disagreeable matter to handle. Unfortunately for parents and teachers, but fortunately for parents and teachers, but fortunately for young people, there is no standardized treatment. The first important thing to do is to discover why the child stole. This really comes before accusing him of stealing. Did the child steal the money because he had no allowance? Did she steal the bright ribbon because she loves pretty colors? Did he take the toy because his desire for it was infinitely stronger than his sense of right? Did she take the apple from the basket in front of the market door just as she had seen the policeman sample the peanuts? Did the little fellow borrow his mother's wrist watch just as he had seen big sister—"borrow" nother's beads? matter to handle. I have known of children who stole

I have known of children who stole things to give away to those they loved best. In this case desire for commendation and a desire for both giving and getting affection are stronger than the sense of the wickedness of stealing. Here's a little story a teacher sent me:

Here's a little story a teacher sent me:

"A little boy came under my charge who has the reputation of stealing. I watched for this defect to appear, and when he brought me some apples that looked suspiciously like those growing in a nearby orchard I asked him where he got them. He was hardly able to tell me, and I said "They look like those growing on that tree (we were walking downtown together at the time). Didn't they come from that tree, Johnny? 'Yes.' Then you had better put them back, for they don't belong to us, and I would not like to have anything that was not mine, would you?' 'No.' So I stopped and waited for him while he replaced the apples, then we continued our walk. All this was said in a smiling, matter-of-fact way, and he wash't unduly hurt; yet, since that time I have never heard of his taking one thing that did not belong to him."

I am glad the teacher didn't say. "Now I haven't a bit of confidence in you," or "You don't know what a terrible blow this has been to me," or, "Tour father will be crushed when he hears of this."

Instead, this teacher helped this boy to grasp something of the idea of a content of Bulls Pull Stock Market Out of Rut in More Active Trading.

CALL RATE 71/2 PER CENT

New York, April 17 (A.P.), - Bulls the rut of narrow trading in which it has been held for several days and achieved a moderate rally today, but operations remained largely professional. The day's sales totaled 3,502,520 shares, Am Can pf (7) and Car pf (7) pf (7). Am Car pf (7) pf (7) pf (7). Am Car pf (7) pf (7) pf (7). Am Car pf (7) pf ( was ended.

Also, the midmonth settlements appeared to have been accomplished without any untoward developments in the money market, and the credit outlook was regarded in banking circles as definitely brighter.

Call Money Again Sags.

Call money Again Sags.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent agged to 7½, and the tone of time money was easier, with the 90-day materially shaded, to 8¾ per cent from 9. The Federal Reserve brokerage loan compilation, to be issued tomorrow, was to show another substantial decline.

The weekly steel trade reviews reported a slight drop in incoming business, but this was not unexpected in view of the unusually heavy commitments of producers, and, as Iron Age explained, may indicate nothing more than an interlude between buying incomments.

Steel, H. S. Wilkinson, chairman, said there was at present every indication that business would continue strong during the remainder of the year, and indicated that higher dividends would be in order. The said Crucible's first quarter earnings were double those of the like period last year. Graham-paige reported first quarter earnings equal to 29 cents a share, as compared to 15 last year, and Johns-Manville, al.30, as compared to 85 cents.

Many at New High Level.

Nearly a score of issues were elevated to new high levels in gains of 2 to 17 points. United States Steel sagged about 2 points in the morning, in selling reflecting disappointment over the more conservative than expected melon announced last night, but it met support at the lower levels and closed steady. Bankers close to (the company are not expected to permit any sag in the stock which would make the rights less attractive.

Aviation stocks were buoyant under the lead of United Aircraft, which jumped about 14 points to a record price of 108, on announcement of purchase of an interest in Aviation Corporation of the Americas. Wight mounted 17 points and Curtiss 5. Adams Express crossed 700 for the first time, a jump of about 10 points, and American Express and American Rail-way both mounted about 8 points. At the annual meeting of Crucible Avistion stocks were buoyant under the lead of United Aircraft, which umped about 14 points to a record rice of 100, on announcement of purhase of an interest in Aviation Corporation of the Americas. Wright nounted 17 points and Curtiss 5, adams Express crossed 700 for the first time, a jump of about 10 points, and American Express and American Railway both mounted about 8 points.

Recent Favorites Bid Up. A number of recent favorites among the specialities, including Crex Carpet, erahey Chocolate, Continental Baking U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Stewart farner were bid up about 4 to 7 points precord high territory. Some of the dependent steels made fair headway, rucible and Youngstown Sheet & the rising about 2 points, the latter of a new top.

In the rails, some of the Van Sweringent issues, including Chesapeake & Onio, Nickel Plate and Erie were in demand, and Baltimore & Onio was firm in anticipation of the offer of rights announced after the close.

Schulte Retail Stores was again a yeak spot, dropping about 4 points to a new low. Webster Eisenlohr dropped about 7 points to new 1929 minimum, and Superior Steel slid back further, touching a new low at 50, but closing at 54%, off about 3 points.

Lehigh Cement Reacts.

Lehigh Portland Cement dropped 3 cints, to 50, a new bottom, and Cushan's Sons dropped nearly 13 points in small turnover. Illinois Central sagged points on the statement of President tewns that March net will show a drop nmodities were irregular, cotton ing 50 to 65 cents a bale lower on Government weather report. Grains firmer, wheat rallying about a cent ushel on better demand and corning 1 to 2 cents on a bullish weather

With two developments for which wall street has been anxiously waiting for the last fortnight—President Hoover's message to Congress and announcement of terms of United States Steel's, new financing—out of the way, traders were able to resume operations with renewed confidence Although there was little in the President's message of marketwise influence. And the steel refinancing was somewhat disappointing, the uncertainty was ended.

Almost the Naked Truth

At the hour of going to press Capt. Bell Prothero, swing skipper of the Cunard Line, had not appealed to Secretary of State Stimson, Mrs. Emily Post or this department for advice, so it is presumed that he had evolved some way out of a dilemma that he will find at the breakfast table tomogrow morning the gift of the restomorrow morning, the gift of the reg-ular commander of the Aquitania, Capt. Diggle, whom he is relieving for the Diggle, whom he is relieving for the present eastward voyage of that vessel. And what a relief it must be to the doughty Diggle! For Capt. Prothero will have to decide as nice a question of social precedence as ever boiled the blood of a Vice President. At one and the same time he will have as passengers Miss Helen Wills and Miss Glenna Collett, or vice versa. As champions in two sports they will, of course, rate as distinguished passengers and be seated at the captain's table.

The question Capt. Prothero must face is, which is to be seated at the place of honor at the captain's right? In other words, does a tennis champion outrank a golf champion or vice versa? Of course, there are ways out of the predicament, and the directors of the Cunard Line can safely leave it to Pro-

5-Run Attack in First Clinches Game: Bucs Held to 5 Hits.

Wilson Gets 4 Safeties: Kremer Victim in First Inning.

HICAGO. April 17 (A.P.).—The pent up fury of murderers' row fell like an avalanche today and the Cubs entered the win column of the National League pennant struggle by sandbagging the Pittsburgh Pirates, 13 to 2. Four Pirate hurlers bore the brunt of the attack, which netted fifteen hits. Three of them were home runs by Rogers Hornsby, Riggs Stephenson and Charlie Grimm. To make matters worse, Mr. Barrow had just been reading that his fellow business man, William Veeck, had drawn a $60,000 gate for the Cubs' opening in Chicago and the company of the pening in Chicago. It it Veeck and Barrow, of course, who draw the gates and not the Cubs and the Yanks. Such was the moment picked by a member of the Yankee squad to essay the always formidable undertaking of making a touch on Mr. Barrow. He was a rookie, of course. Amateur Organizations Have Another Dispute Pending.

A. A. U. Officials profess to be greatly pleased at their success in compromising their differences with the National Collegiate Athletic Association. Some time ago, it will be recalled, the A. A. U. suspended certain Middle Western College athletes for competing in a meet unsanctioned by the A. A. U., but otherwise above reproach. The N. C. A. A. then unclubbily suggested, in effect, that the A. A. U. mind its own business, if it had any, and demanded business, if thad any, and demanded recognition of the right of colleges to pass for themselves on the eligibility of their athletes.

For a time the shadow of war hung over the land, but, with rare tact and forbearance, the A. A. U. avoided an open break before representatives of both organizations could get together and reach a compromise. The compromise was reached at a meeting here mise was reached at a meeting here this week. It provides recognition by both sides of the principle that col-leges have the right to pass on the eli-BOWLERS DECIDE TITLE.

The Pension Team, winner of the first series of the Interior Department Bowling League, and the Burvey No. 1 Team, winner of the second half, will clash on the Convention Half dirves tonight at 37.30 o'clock with the season's championship at stake. "Lady Luck" surely smiled on Catcher Mickey Cochrane in the third inning. While dodging one of Braxton's offerings, the ball hit his bat and fell safely just back of Bluege. Two runners, who were on the bases and winging because two were out, scored.

There was considerable speculation as the exhibition season ended as to whether "Sad Sam" Jones or Garland Braxton would be honored with the opening game pitching assignment. Both must have lost lots of their stuff my the first have lost lots of their stunium while the guessing contest was going on, and any one on the squad could have done as well, although it must be admitted that many of the visitors' hits were weak ones which dropped just between the infield and outfield. Judging from the jeers and sarcastic Judging from the jeers and sarcastic "cheering" heard yesterday, there is a great field open for the recently organized Walter Johnson Boosters Club. One hundred and fifty-four games are scheduled this season, and some fans would not even bear with the team through one, showing that there is nothing more fickle than a baseball fan. The Nats have shown this spring that they are a good team, but they can't be expected to win every game. It was un-fortunate that they had to pick out their first league game to look worse than at any time this spring.

One of the most cheering features of yesterday's cheerless game from Manager Johnson's standpoint was Sammy West's triple in the second inning. It was a real drive almost to the fence in deep center. The young center fielder has disappointed at bat so far this season, but Johnson sees in this blow signs that West is sharpening his batting eve.

Foxx's liner to Judge in the eighth, with Hale on first, spun the first-sacker around like a top, and it took him a moment to get his bearings before he dashed to first to complete an unasisted double killing.

Bluege missed getting a double by inches opening the Nats' eight when a drive off his bat just crossed the chalk-line in left field. Hale then made a fine stop and peg to kill the Nat short-

Nats Out of Ball Game After First Two Innings.

The Nats, as a matter of fact, were in the ball game for only two inn second when they scored two more, trailing them by only one run. Thereafter, the Macks drew away and left no doubt as to the result, but the proportions of the victory were still a matter for conjecture until Lisks entered the box.

proportions of the victory were still a matter for conjecture until Liska entered the box.

Nine hits was the portion of the Nationals, four of which were clustered off Yerkes in the first two innings. Goose Goslin, Buddy Myer and Red Barnes each accounted for two, but a triple by Sammy West with two on base in the second inning was the piece de resistance of the Washington attack. Bishop's single into right field which Barnes might have caught with a quicker start sent the Macks on their winning way as the first inning opened. Summa, late of the Cleveland Indians, advanced Bishop with a accrifice to Myer and Jones gave first indication of his poor form when one of his curves hit Cochrane in the leg.

The tension appeared eased when Haas rolled to Judge, but Sammy Hale sent a looping single into right field that scored both Bishop and Cochrane.

These two runs were offset by the Nats on their first appearance at the plate, although West had filled out and Myer was a victim of the infield when the scoring action started. Goslin lined a single into right field and advanced to third when Barnes lashed a double to left. Bluege was the hero of the moment when he sent a clean single over second base into center field, scoring both Goslin and Barnes. Bluege's Single Scores Two Four hits rattled off the Athletics' bats in the second inning and they took a three-run lead. Dyses smashed a single through shortstop but was forced on Yerkes' attempted bunt to Jones. Bishop, however, singled to right and Suma followed with another, scoring Yerkes and sending Bishop to third. Cochrane hit to Bluege, who cut Bishop off at home. Ruel making the putout on a rundown. Cochrane took second on the play and followed Summa across the plate a moment later when Haas sent a long double to right center. Other dramatic introductions were when Humphreys first saw Jess Willard and "give him his knockdown to the mob," and when, months before the Willard-Dempsey fracas, Humphreys took a long chance and publicly introduced Jack Dempsey as "the next heavyweight champion of the world."

But the most solemn moment in his long career came at Yankee Stadium, May 20, 1927, just before the Sharkey-Maloney bout.

"There was 50,000 people in the stadium that night, and their minds weren't all on the fights by a long shot," Humphreys says. At 9:45 p. m. he read about the following message:

The veteran Sam Rice was given a great ovation when he pinch-hit for Pitcher Ad Liska in the ninth. His best, however, was a looper to Hass in short center. As the Nats were only nine runs behind at this stage, every one was just as well satisfied that Sam did nothing to prolong the game.

Braxton was almost inhumanely left in the box for two more innings and, in the fourth, Hale led off with a single and preceded Foxx across the plate on the strength of the tremendous hoist that the first baseman lifted into the left field bleachers for the first home run hit at Griffith Stadium this season.

The fifth inning saw Braxton start off inauspiclously by hitting Bishop on the back. Summa fouled to Myer and Hayes threw out Cochrane, but Joe Judge set the stage for two runs when he tossed poorly to Braxton at first base after making a remarkable stop of Haas' hot grounder, Bishop scoring on the play. Hale then responded with a double to center field that scored Cochrane. Foxx advanced Hale to third with a hit that Myer knocked down, but Miller forced him for the third out. That was the extent of the Macks' scoring, for Liska entered the box starting the sixth, and his weird underhand curves reduced the Philadelphia attack to a nonenity. Not a hit did the Athletics obtain off the rookie, whose performance was the most encouraging feature of the contest from a Washington viewpoint. For four innings he toiled in fine fashion, only two walks marring his performance.

Against Rommell the Nats' attack wilted quickly, only desultory hits in the late innings upsetting the routine order of the Philadelphia veteran's performance. Once a double play, started by Rommel himself, nipped a promising rally in the fourth, while strike-outs interspersed among the five hits he allowed thoroughly squelched any scoring notions. Steady Upward Movement of Prices Is Interrupted; Sales Speed Up.

FOREIGNS FAIRLY ACTIVE

New York, April 17 (A.P.).-The steady upward movement of prices in the bond market in the past week was interrupted today. Easing of time money rates for the shorter dates from 9 to 8% per cent indicated that gradual relaxation of the recent credit strin-8 Australia 4½s, 1956 tive new offerings also have played a part.

In banking circles, the improvement in bonds was accepted as presaging easier credit on the long trend, now that the seasonal demand for funds has passed its peak and the Federal Reserve policy has forced some liquidation in stocks. That trend was given special emphasis by further firming of United States Government obligations, which are especially sensitive to change in money rates. Sales were a little greater and the Libertys are now generally more than a point above their low prices touched late in March.

Total sales speeded up to $8,393,000, more than $1,000,000 above Monday's low mark, but a good deal of the activity was the result of revival of interest in the convertibles. That group responded to a rally in stocks with an advance of nearly four points for the international Telephone 4½s, the most heavily traded issue on the list.

While the convertibles were the speculative favorites, attention of investors continued to center on the rails. The improvement in this group, although general, was most noticeable among the junior rails, including Brie, Frisco and St. Paul. The St. Paul 5s, favorite rail of the session as far as trading went, picked up half a point. The Seaboard Air Lines continued active on reports of recapitalization plans, but were irregular.

of recapitalization plans, but were irregular.

United States Steel sinking fund 5s responded to final preparations of the Steel Corporation directors to retire its funded debt with a burst of activity that carried prices up a fraction. The rubbers and oils also scored further sains, the Goodyear Tire 5s reaching a new high for the year at 94. Panamerican Petroleum 6s, a recent speculative favorite, railied after their drop of yesterday.

Pair buying was apparent in the foring group, but prices were uneven. The British bonds did not react to news of agitation by British Labor Party eaders for debt revision.

Six Trunk Lines, Charging Constitution is Violated, Apply for Injunction.

SPECIAL COURT IS CALLED

Norfolk, Va., April 17 (A.P.)—Six trunk line railroads today filed with Pederal Judge D. Lawrence Groner a petition for an injunction to restrain the Interstate Commesce Commission from requiring the railroads to put into effect reduced refrigerator car charges on fruits, vegetables and other periabable freight as ordered effective May I. Judge Groner entered an order conat that time Because of the constitutional question raised by the railroads, who claim that the Commission's order violates the fifth amendment of the Constitution of the United States, a statutory court is required by law. Circuit Judge Parker, of Charlotte, N. C., and District Judge Morris
A. Soper, of Baltimore, will sit with Judge Groner in Richmond Tuesday.

The complaining railroads are the Atlantic Coast fine, Baltimore & Ohio, Florida East Coast, Pennsylvania, Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac and Seaboard Air Line.

James F. Wright, general solicitor for the Seaboard, appeared before Judge Groner today and filed the injunction application.

The bill of the railroads set forth that the cost of operating, maintaining and application.

The bill of the railroads set forth that the cost of operating, maintaining and servicing the refrigerator cars was not considered in its entirety by the .nterstate Commerce Commission in reducing the rates and that the methods and results ordered are in violation of the fifth amendment.

The refrigerator car rates were reduced after an exhaustive investigation, in which the State Corporation Commission of Virginia and public utility commissions of other States as well as shippers of perishables intervened. The commission ordered a rehearing on patition of the railroads early this month, but directed that the carriers should file tariffs in accordance with its order by April 25 and declined to postpone the effective date of the reduction.

Mrs. Hoover Is Among Those Charmed by Lucrezia Bori in "Manon."

DIVA PRESENTS LILIES TO PRESIDENT'S WIFE

Benjamin Gigli Shares Honors in Stellar Role; Double Bill to Be Sung Tonight.

Well-nigh perfection of operatic art niere of the brief opera season of the Metropolitan Opera Company in Washington last night when the company presented Jules Massanet's "Ma-" before a capacity audience in Poli's Theater with Lucrezia Bori, prima donna, soprano, and Benjamin Gigli as costars of the performance.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the resident, headed the group of official social celebrities, made last night's one of the most brilliant opera spectacles ever seen in the National Capital. Mrs. Hoover occupied the presidential box with the Attorney General and Mrs. William DeWitt Mitchell. President Hoover was detained by affairs of state, but it is understood that he expects to attend the opera performance with Mrs. Hoover tonight. Vice President Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Gann and a party of friends occupied the opposite box.

As a welcome to Mrs. Hoover in her new role of the first patron of music at the Capital. Miss Bori, at the end of the second act, in answering a call with Mr. Gigli, presented to Mrs. Hoover a lovely sheaf of Resurrection illies while the audience applauded enthusiantically. Mrs. Hoover came forward to the front of her box to receive them from the singer, bowing her acknowledgements Washington, which, with diplomats and opera was presented under the management of Giulio Gattiazza, of the Metropolitan, and under the local management of Mrs. Wilson Greene, to whose enterprise Washingto was the return of the Metropolita era Company annually after a laps f many years.

All the boxes were filled and the filliancy of the occasion was enhanced by handsome gowns and jewels worn by he women present. In this respect it isaled the famous horse show circle of the Metropolitan Opera House in New

Gigli an Excellent "Des Grieux."
Nor did Gigli fail to make the utmost of his role. Vocally, histrionically and artistically he was an entrancing Des Grieux, giving to his interpretation all the refinement intended in the score yet conveying an intensity in the portrayal of passion which wins the eager verdict that he is the gracest in this role since the days of Jean de Reszke and his associates.

There is no doubt that in his previous performances of Des Grieux Gigli sarred many of the artistic secrets of the role. Last night he sang it throughout with artistry and beauty. The audience was deeply stirred as his mellow tones, tender and satisfying, were heard in the lovely arias and dust which fell as his share of the opera. Again and again Miss Bori and he were applauded to the eche and the audience was aroused to a degree of enthusiasm seldom seen in a Washington theater and they were recalled repeatedly after the acts. Gigli's singing of "Le Reve" was particularly effective.

Much of the success of last night's performance must rightly be attributed to the splendid work of Louis Hazzelmans, conductor of French operas at the Metropolitan, whose leadership of the augmented orchestra made the orchestral contribution notable in this dity. Every orchestra beauty was fully developed under the magic of his betom known his Massasent thoroughly.

Giuseppe de Luca Stores.

Washington was charmed with the performance and the singing of Giuseppe de Lucas, the barytone, in the role of Issecaut.

The Gallic spirit of the opera is much apparent throughout it. This was well maintained by Aida Doninelli, as Pousgett; Minnie Egener, as Javotte; Dorone. Fleder, as Rosette, the trio of singers who added much charm to the opera.

Leon Rothier gave a strikingly diging indic and eloquent significance to the spirit of the agent of the performance of the role of singers of an added to the color of the color of singers of colors. Fleder, as Rosette, the trio of singers of singer of the color of the color of

MANY OFFICIALS PRESENT

The nearest approach any artist can come to singing before a queen—unless it be a visitor—in the United States was made by members of the Metropolitan Opera Company last night when Mrs. Herbert Hoover occupied a box at Poli's Theater.

Included in the First Lady's party ewere the Attorney General and Mrs. William D. Mitchell, Mrs. Jean Large, a sister of Mrs. Hoover, and William Henry, an uncle.

The Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, attended in the box of the Cuban Ambassador and Mme. Ferrara, with The nearest approach any artist can

In her duets with Gigli, the mellifuluous blending of their voices was exquisitely harmonious, yet the individuality of each was not lost.

The revival of "Manon" was of special interest because it had restored the spirit of the composer to the dainty themes and measures too frequently lost in its presentation.

By EMMA PERLEY LINCOLN.

More new evening ensembles stepped orth for the first time at the opening performance of the Metropolitan Opera last evening than have been seen forth for the first time at the opening performance of the Metropolitan Opera last evening than have been seen at any one viewing in many a month. Society was out in full force and the newest creations for summer evening wear trailed up and down the staircases and floated gracefully through the asises during what proved to be an entirely brilliant evening.

The unreasonable chill in the atmosphere did not derrive quite all the entirely brilliant evening.

The unreasonable chill in the atmosphere did not deprive quite all the women present of the joy of wearing the diaphonous wraps which are a part of the newest evening costumes. However, there were more ermine coats and handsome fur-trimmed brocades and velvets in the wraps seen than the lighter variety.

Was not learned wore one of the most attractive gowns seen, a white moir ande in this fashion with a hem of black tulle and small red satin bows marking the shirring up the center of the bodice. Red satin shoes accompanied this costume. In fact, there were more satin, moire and crepe shoes in colors to match or sharply contrast with the costume than any other style. When Mrs. Hoover rose to accept the great sheaf of lilies graciously offered her by Lucretia Boriz, all could see that she was wearing a charming gown of deep rose chiffon. # FLOOD PERIL WANES AS DOWNPOUR ENDS IN POTOMAC VALLEY

Lowlands in Towns Along the Upper River Inundated and Homes Abandoned.

RAIL TRAFFIC SLOWED IN WESTERN MARYLAND

Fair Weather Promised as Rain Ceases—Tourist Camp Is Damaged by Winds.

With fair and warmer weather pron sed for today, and a day's surcease from rain, the flood menace to Washington passed over last night. Although the crest of the high water on the Potoms River was not expected until early this morning, Weather Bureau officials indicated that it would not rise to the flood stage of 8 feet.

The flood was real enough to citizens of nearby Virginia and Maryland, how-ever. Bladensburg has been partly under water since Monday morning; sections of Ballston, Va., were covered to a depth of several inches. At Will-iamsport, Md., and Harpers Ferry, W. Va., residents were driven from their homes to higher ground yesterday by the rising waters, and at many points along the river summer campers and cottagers fled to safety as the water cottagers fled to safety as the water surged ever closer.

Baltimore & Ohio trains running in western Maryland were rerouted yesterday between Cherry Run and Jerome, W. Va. In many plas the tracks were covered by several inches of water.

In spite of the two days' downpour the streets and open spaces were rapidly dried yesterday as a fresh wind blew in from the northwest. The wind which dried yesterday as a fresh wind blew in from the northwest. This wind, which at intervals rose to half-gale velocity, will continue today, the Weather Bureau said last night, although diminishing in intensity.

Officials of the bureau also indicated that, although the crest of the flood would not reach Washington until early this morning, there was little danger of flood. While the rise at Harpers Ferry reached a high point of more than 20 feet yesterday, it has never climbed above the 7-foot mark here. This means that when the Harpers Ferry crest reaches Washington it will cause only a rise of a few inches at the most. Not only is today expected to be fair, with only an occasional overcast sky, but a temperature rising to 60 degrees is predicted. During the past two days low marks of 42 degrees were reached.

The wind which accompanied the steady rains caused considerable damage on their own account. One automobile was badly damaged by a falling tree Tuesday. At the Washington Tourist Camp in Potomac Park, tents were badly battered, stakes were torn from the ground, and canvas was ripped by the fierce, gusty winds.

TEACHERS' COLLEGE TO BE ESTABLISHED

Education Board Issues Order Creating Institution That Congress Authorized.

POSITION OF PRESIDENT TO CARRY $5,000 SALARY

Graduates Will Lack Special Preference in Obtaining Jobs in Schools Here.

Establishment of a Teachers' College, effective July 1 next, as authorized under a recent act of Congress, was ordered yesterday by the Board of Education at a meeting in the Franklin Building. After that date, all pupils entering the white and colored normal schools will be required to take a four-year course, leading to an appropriate bachelor's degree.

All students now enrolled in the normal schools, however, will continue as normal school students, completing a three-year normol school course.

The first graduates of the Teachers' College will be in the June graduating class of 1933.

lic school, under the new law.

At the same time the board ordered the creation of a position of president of the Teachers' College, carrying with it an annual salary of $5,000, with yearly increase at the rate of $200 a year until a maximum salary of $6,000 is reached. Other vacancies also include that of a dean, carrying with it an annual minimum salary of $4,000 and numerous vacancies on the teaching staff.

Ing staff.

Dr. Charles F. Carusi, president of the board, announced that applications from local institutions of learning desiring to confer degrees, other than institutions created under special act of Congress, would be received for consideration beginning May 1. as authorized under a recent act of Congress providing for the control of so-called "diploma mills" in Washington.

Letting of Contracts Reported.

cials questioned him closely and asked Baltimore police to investigate. It was found that the name he gave there was incorrect and that the lad had left his Washington home. Detective Sergeant Thomas Nally brought him back.

He left Washington on December 6, and, after several encounters with south-bound motorists, who gave him short "lifts," he met a couple who took him to Florida, where he told them he lived. Earl spent the winter in Florida, earning his living as a golf caddy. With the end of the season he determined to retrace his course. He was turned over to the custody of his aunt, Mrs. Mabel Wright, yesterday. Communications received by the board included those from the District Commissioners announcing letting of a contract for an eight-room addition to the Morgan School, the letting of a contract for an eight-room addition to the Burrville School, and the purchase of a site for the Giddings-Lincoln School.

The Chevy Chase Citizens Association petitioned the board to name the proposed school in the Reno section the Alice Deal Junior High School.

The Cathedral Heights - Cleveland Park Citizens Association requested an addition to the Gordon Junior High School of at least twelve rooms.

Traffic Bureau Hit By Citizens' Group

Southwest Washington Is in Favor of Abolishing

Office as Economy. Abolition of the offices of director of trasfic, and his immediate assistants and a general reorganization of the bureau, was urged last night in a resobureau, was urged last night in a reso-lution adopted at a meeting of the Southwest Washington Citizens Asso-ciation in the Fairbrother School. George M. Yestman, chairman of the police and fire committee of the associ-ation and sponsor of the resolution, de-clared the reorganization of the traffic bureau and the abolition of the offices of director of traffic and his assistants would result in an annual saving of approximately $18,000 in salaries. The Southwest association favors transfer of activities of the bureau to the jurisdic-tion of an assistant superintendent of police.

The association also adopted a resolution indorsing the permanent establishment of the Washington Opera Co. W. S. Ufford, secretary of the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, gave an illustrated address. The association will cooperate with the Jefferson Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association in the holding tonight of a benefit dinner in the junior high school. J. M. Hall presided.

Pennsylvania Society

Sees World War Film and comment.

As drafted, the regulations would affect every householder installing a refrgerating machine. The real purpose of the regulations, however, is to put into law a control over larger installations, and if there is strong objection to the inclusion of single units within the scope of the law, this provision probably will be eliminated. Moving pictures of actual fighting during the World War were shown last night at the Willard Hotel at a meeting of the Pennsylvania Society of Washington. The pictures, taken by the Signal Corps, showed activities of the Twenty-eighth Division in France. This division was made up entirely of members of the Pennsylvania National Guard.
